The Great Cat Massacre
Robert Darnton 2009-05-12
The landmark history of France and French culture in the eighteenth-century, a winner of the Los Angeles Times Book Prize When the apprentices of a Paris printing shop in the 1730s held a series of mock trials and then hanged all the cats they could lay their hands on, why did they find it so hilariously funny that they choked with laughter when they reenacted it in pantomime some twenty times? Why in the eighteenth-century version of Little Red Riding Hood did the wolf eat the child at the end? What did the anonymous townsman of Montpelier have in mind when he kept an exhaustive dossier on all the activities of his native city? These are some of the provocative questions the distinguished Harvard historian Robert Darnton answers The Great Cat Massacre, a kaleidoscopic view of European culture during in what we like to call “The Age of Enlightenment.” A classic of European history, it is an essential starting point for understanding Enlightenment France.

Space, Text and Gender
Henrietta Moore 1986
Br More analyses the Marakwet through the relationship between organisation of household and gender relations in a changing society.

Rethinking Symbolism
Nicholas Wolterstorff 1984
Expanding on his earlier work on the centrality of symbols in human affairs, Wolterstorff has added a substantial new section on the role of faith in the decisions scholars make about their choice of subject matter.

Mundane Objects
Pierre Lhomme 2016-06-16
This concise book shows the importance of objects that are considered ordinary by cultural outsiders and scholars, yet lie at the heart of the systems of thought and practices of their makers and users. This volume demonstrates the role of these objects in nonverbal communication, both in non-religious and in religious situations. Lhomme shows that some objects, their physical properties and their material implementation, are worldless expressions of fundamental aspects of a way of living and thinking, as well as sometimes the only means of expressing the inexpressible. Through the study of the most mundane technical activities such as fence building, creating models cars, or trapping fish, we often gain a better understanding of what these objects mean and how they work within their cultures of origin. In addition to anthropologists and archaeologists, this book will also be of interest to sociologists, historians, philosophers, cognitive anthropologists and primitivists, for whom the intertwinning of “function” and “style” is the very mark of all cultural behavior.

Image and Pilgrimage in Christian Culture
Victor Witter Turner 2011

Reason Within the Bounds of Religion
Nicholas Wolterstorff 1984
Expanding on his 1976 study of the bearing of Christian faith on the practice of scholarship, Wolterstorff has added a substantial new section on the role of faith in the decisions scholars make about their choice of subject matter.
